THE FIRST PSALM

"Praised be the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful."

"But his delight is in the law of the Lord, and in his law doth he meditate day and night."

"And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in season; his leaf also shall not wither, and whatsoever he doth shall prosper. The ungodly are not so; but like the chaff which the wind driveth away."

"Therefore the ungodly shall not stand in the judgment, nor sinners in the congregation of the righteous."

"But the Lord knoweth the way of the righteous; but the way of the ungodly shall perish."

BIBLE READING

Many of us, whom our closest friends would not accuse of being religious, find consolation and inspiration often in the writings of the "sweet singer of Israel." Can anything more sonorous be found in human language than the Psalms? What more lofty than the writings of St. Paul, greatest of men next to Christ? What more comforting than to read the trials and tribulations of Job, couched in language with no equal for simplicity and force?

And if one wants to know the origin of most of our basic laws, he can find that information in the Old Testament by reading the customs and laws of the Jews, from which come the ten commandments, and practically all of our penal and many of our civil statutes.

PINOLE BOY IS DROWNED IN ACCIDENT

Funeral services will be held at 9:30 o'clock Monday morning from the St. Joseph's church in Pinole, with Father A. A. Doyle officiating, for William Goularte, 12, of Pinole, who was drowned early yesterday morning.

The body will lie in state at the Wilgen and Kraizer chapel until 9 o'clock when the cortege will leave for the church. Interment will be in St. Joseph's cemetery. Rosary will be said tonight at 8 o'clock.

Fernandez is an expert swimmer and was seen to swim to the shore. Goularte upon the overturned bottom of the boat. He admonished them to remain there. (Continued on page 5)

Dictaphone In Lamson's Jury Room Is Sought

SAN JOSE, March 2.—UP—Search for a mysterious dictaphone reportedly concealed in the jury quarters of the old Santa Clara county courthouse today set the stage for the "encore trial" of David Lamson for the alleged murder of his wife.

The quest for the mechanical eavesdropper was ordered by Sheriff George Lyle when it was rumored the instrument had been planted by someone seeking "inside information."

Lyle said he had "excellent reason" to believe the dictaphone was secreted in the jury quarters and said he would search the rooms until the jury actually is in session Monday.

As the new by-play dramatized the coming struggle for Lamson's life, the jury was at home for its last free week-end during trial.

Nine days of tiresome legalism, during which even smooth-tongued Judge R. R. Syer became restive, were necessary before the lawyers obtained a satisfactory selection. A mistrial was averted only by defense stipulation when it was discovered a relative of a member of the prosecution staff had been seated on the jury. The offending juror was removed.

OAKLAND MAN FACES PETTY THEFT CHARGE

Percy LaRue, 5506 "C" street, Oakland was lodged in the city jail last night on charges of petty theft. LaRue was arrested by Oakland police yesterday on a warrant sworn to by W. B. Wilson, 610 Sixteenth street, Richmond, and was turned over to local police.

Wilson told police that LaRue was a guest at his home and while there took jewelry valued at $5.

Suspect Held In Deaths Of Two Wives Is Held Sane

OAKLAND, March 2.—(UP)—Louis Gosden, 31, held for investigation in the deaths of two of his three former wives, was declared sane today after a secret sanity test had been ordered by the district attorney's office.

Following completion of the test by Dr. Benjamin W. Black, Charles Wehr, deputy district attorney, said it had been found Gosden was sane. Wehr added that Lydia Sanborn, Gosden's latest inamorata, disclosed she had gone on parties with Gosden and had been kissed by him before his third wife died in violent convulsions.

POISON HINTED

Police sought a diary kept by the third wife, Laura, in the belief it might disclose relations of the couple before her death.

District Attorney Earl Warren of Alameda county declared he will bring Gosden before the county grand jury and ask a murder indictment not later than Wednesday.

Laura Silvia Gosden was wife No. 3. She died in convulsions last November and her death certificate gave pneumonia as the cause. District Attorney Warren claimed, however, that pathologists found traces of strychnine in her stomach after the body was exhumed recently.

SEEK DIARY

Police were told by Joe Camara, brother of Gosden's 18-year-old "housekeeper," Lydia Sanborn, that he knew Laura Silvia Gosden and knew that she kept a diary. Warren said he planned to question Gosden and Miss Sanborn, who is held in the juvenile detention home, in an effort to trace the diary.

Authorities said, meanwhile, that no decision had been reached on the advisability of exhuming the body of Mrs. Vivian Gosden, wife No. 2, who died suddenly in 1927.

Gosden secured an annulment to his first marriage when his wife left him. The first Mrs. Gosden now is re-married.

COUP FAILS AS PLANES BOMB SHIPS

ATHENS, March 3.—(Sunday)—(UP)—Determined to crush swiftly the rebellious forces in the navy who seek to restore to power former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos, the government today ordered mobilized the 1932 and 1933 military reserve classes.

This move followed an ultimatum calling upon the rebel fleet, composed of eight warships and four submarines to surrender. Demonstrating its decision to enforce the ultimatum, the government sent airplanes to bomb the rebellious naval forces.

SHIPS BOMBED

Four rebel ships were bombed in the Aegean sea as they steamed toward Crete, on the island of Crete, where Venizelos, four times premier, has been in seclusion since he last was deposed from power.

The attempt of the naval rebels to cooperate with the land rebels was quelled promptly by the government when federal troops surrounded the barracks of the outcasts of Athens.

REBELS SURRENDER

After a brief battle, in which the government pounded the barracks with artillery, the revolutionists surrendered.

While official advices of casualties were lacking, it was unofficially reported that at least four or five persons had been killed and approximately 50 wounded.

One of the four submarines which participated in the rebellion, returned early today to the naval arsenal at the port of Athens. Soldiers swarmed aboard as soon as it had berthed and arrested all aboard.

Taxpayers May Move Homes To Avoid Tax

In the parlance of the square circle, a property owner of Merced has beaten to the punch similarly affected home owners of Contra Costa county who have been contemplating employing the same drastic measures to protect their taxes and penates.

According to a dispatch to the Record-Herald, published yesterday morning residents of exclusive Ragdale addition, outside of Merced city limits, awoke the other morning to find that a house had been "spirited" away during the night. Only a vacant lot remained where a family had lived in a two-story home. The mystery of the vanished dwelling was explained as a movement launched to combat an improvement district tax rate that had sky-rocketed to $74 per $100 assessed valuation. As a result of tax defaults and pyramiding of remaining assessments, the Ragdale addition tax rate has vaulted annually from a few dollars to $35 in 1930, to a high of $74 in 1933 and a prospective elevation of $500 on a $100 lot in the near future. To avoid this confiscation by the bondholders, the home was removed during the night and re-located on a lot two blocks distant, within the city limits of Merced, and outside of the street assessment district that was blanketed with the practical Mattoon act of 1925.

FOUR DISTRICTS HERE

There are four of these Mattoon districts in Contra Costa county, all of them located in Supervisory District No. 1, and there have been mutterings for some time emanating from District No. 2. This is an exclusive residential section in Berkeley Park and Garrito Park, flanking on Contra Costa avenue, on which bonds in the sum of $14,470 were issued in 1929. Unless a re-evaluation of assessments, the Ragdale addition tax rate has vaulted annually from a few dollars to $35 in 1930, to a high of $74 in 1933 and a prospective elevation of $500 on a $100 lot in the near future. To avoid this confiscation by the bondholders, the home was removed during the night and re-located on a lot two blocks distant, within the city limits of Merced, and outside of the street assessment district that was blanketed with the practical Mattoon act of 1925.

San Pedro Hit By Waterspout; Damage Reported

SAN PEDRO, March 2.—(UP)—A waterspout forming over the ocean tore over the harbor district as a tornado, damaging a church and several other buildings, late today. No casualties were reported.

The waterspout was first observed approximately four miles off the breakwater. It hovered, a swirling column of water reaching from the water to the clouds above, for five minutes, then apparently disappeared.

A few minutes later the "twister" appeared over the harbor and boned across the outskirts of the San Pedro residential district. The roof was torn off the Free Methodist church and a private garage was overturned. Many trees were uprooted.

Friends last night were mourning the death of Louis Andrew Giraldin, 82, who passed away at his home, 2380 Lowell avenue early last evening.

Deceased had resided here for the past 12 years. He was a retired employee of a coast shipping firm, having worked for them for more than 40 years.

Giraldin, of Seattle; Mrs. Emily Shepherd, of Stockton, a step-daughter and George C. Williams, of Stockton, a step-son. He also leaves eight grandchildren.

Funeral services are pending at the Wilson and Kratzer chapel.

NEW DEALERS DISMAYED BY 'REBELLION'

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(UP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt and his second year as president of the United States in a retreat before a rebellious congress with the outstanding provision of unemployment insurance.

In two full months, the 74th congress has not enacted a single new deal measure for reform or recovery. The only occasion on which the overwhelmingly Democratic house and senate were disposed to cooperate with the White House was in extending the life of the reconstruction finance corporation.

CONTROL FADING

Mr. Roosevelt's authority on Capitol Hill is fading. New deal congressional leaders are dismayed. The time is not distant when Mr. Roosevelt must decide whether to continue in this session his effort to obtain enactment of his new deal program. The alternative would be a hurried completion of the reuther departmental appropriation bills, acceptance of a recovery relief compromise, extension of N. R. A. and early adjournment.

That would postpone until next year action on the bank bill, public utilities holding companies and the omnibus social security program. By such strategy Mr. Roosevelt could avoid a showdown with congress on the 30-hour work week, currency inflation, farm avenge relief, cash payment of depositors in closed banks and other left wing projects to which the administration objects.

GOVERNOR'S TAX PLAN IS ROW CENTER

SACRAMENTO, Calif., March 2.—(UP)—California's first Legislature will resume its session Monday, at which time economic and social problems which must be solved if state expenses are to be met and unemployment alleviated.

Undercurrents of disagreement in the capital after the five-week constitutional recess which followed the 1933-37 biennium.

PROGRAM IN DISPUTE

Opinions and activities revolved around Governor Frank P. Merriam's program, which recommended methods of raising more than $150,000,000 in new revenue to pay governmental expenses and provide for unemployment relief during the 1933-37 biennium.

EXTENT OF GOVERNOR'S STRATEGY

Extent of the Governor's strategy was not known definitely, but observers agreed that varied ideas particularly in the Lower House where Democrats and rebel Republicans were unwilling to "go down the high" way, cause a deadlock and necessitate a special election before the biennial tax program is finally accepted.

WIDE SPLIT SEEN

Evidence of a wide split was seen in the attitude at previous sessions of the Legislature. Merriam's comments of Merriam followed that a wide split was likely to disrupt the administration program.

Republicans who are understood to be in the Merriam camp refuse to be quoted but they admitted "of the record" that they believed the Governor's plan as a whole would be rejected.

ARIZONA FACES NEW THREATS OF LABOR WAR

PHOENIX, March 2.—(UP)—The state of Arizona today faced a new threat in the Salt River valley, one of the world's richest farming regions, with the threat of bitter labor warfare added to terrorist activities against aliens which brought international complications.

Dynamic Governor R. B. Moer, who boasts of being a "pretty good single-handed scrapper," himself, said he would preserve law and order, life and property. "As long as I am governor, we have always taken care of Arizona, and will continue to do so," he said.

The most recent threat to peace and harmony in the fertile 13,000-acre valley came with the annual influx of migratory lettuce trimmers and pickers from strife-torn Imperial valley in California. Moving under the banner of the American Federation of Labor, which backed them in a bloody conflict with farm owners and packing firms of the Imperial Valley, the workers were primed to battle for what they consider their rights. They left two dead in El Centro—the result of a hand to hand fight by strikers with armed guards at a lettuce packing shed.

These determined laborers entered an agricultural area already torn with terrorism and bombings directed against Japanese and Hindu farmers. Plans by the Legislature to force alien farmers from the land by legal methods complicate the situation. Tokyo and Washington both are watching with scarcely concealed anxiety lest attempts to deprive aliens of the right to make a living in the state provoke a delicate international episode.

Two proposed laws are before the Legislature. In the House, a bill is now before the judiciary committee which would provide that no alien ineligible for citizenship could acquire, possess, cultivate, occupy, use or transfer any real property.

Elks Dance Is Well Attended

local church and heard the pastor tell his flock that the reason they were poor Christians was because they did not read their Bible. He had other things to say also, which caused them to squirm in their seats. The thought flashed through my mind that here was a man who was sinning his way song to his congregation. And so it proved, for not long after he left for other fields of endeavor. Yet the sneaker was right. No man can hold communion with his God without reading and studying God's word. Going to church on Sunday is an act, which in itself, never made a true Christian. There must be more than the service and outward conformity to entitle any man or woman to a seat with the saints.

US SINNERS

It becomes me to point out the path of duty to those afflicted with the church; but surely I am free to talk to the sinners without rebuke of criticism flying in my face. To every man and woman I would advise the reading of the Scriptures. They sound the heights of human emotion, and no one can but be benefitted and entertained by their perusal. And from their pages we finally perceive the eternal verities—truths that have been since the world began and will be until the world ends. Noah, Elisha, Elisha and Moses pass before us in review, an awe-inspiring spectacle of men and deeds; then the apostles preaching a new religion, less harsh than that of the Old Testament with the keynote of brotherly love; Paul thundering his everlasting truths in tones like that of a pipe organ; and finally the wonderful book of Revelations, telling of a new heaven and a new earth and the promise in the 25th verse of the 22nd chapter that "there shall be no night there."

I have heard it said that any man can become conversant with what is going on in the world by reading a daily newspaper. Time, the Review of Reviews, and the Saturday Evening Post. Add the Bible and I will assure that those who read these publications know something of the life that is and something of the life to come. Deep within the most of us, whether we are church adherents or not, resides the hope of something better beyond the grave, that something which is called immortality. Perhaps if we read the Scriptures more diligently and with open eyes, we will see the star of hope in the night of death and our listening ears will hear the rustle of a wing.

SCORE OFFICER FOR WILD TALE OF ARMED JAPS

SAN FRANCISCO, March 2.—(UP)—The California joint immigration committee issued a statement today characterizing as fantastic any assertion that there are 500,000 armed Japanese in the United States.

Uncontradicted publication of such an assertion, the statement declared, "is likely to disturb the friendly relations and mutual appreciation now existing between Japanese and Caucasians in California which has developed since settlement of the immigration question in 1924."

Roy W. Knabenshue of Pasadena, pioneer airship builder, told the House patents committee in Washington Thursday that "half a million Japanese are in this country and could form an army immediately in case of war."

Although Knabenshue was not mentioned by name, it was obvious that the Joint Immigration Committee's statement was in answer to his assertion. Under questioning by members of the patents committee, however, Knabenshue admitted his belief was based entirely on hearsay, and that he had never seen an armed Japanese.

The Joint Immigration Committee, which played a leading part in enactment of the drastic 1924 federal law excluding Asiatic immigrants who are ineligible to citizenship, represents the California State bodies of the American Legion and the American Federation of Labor, as well as the Native Sons of the Golden West.

Signed by V. S. McClatchy, executive secretary, and James K. Fisk, chairman, the committee's statement calls attention to the fact that the entire Japanese population in the United States, men, women and children, is only about 200,000, almost equally divided between Hawaii and continental United States.

One Killed, Two Hurt As Plane Dives Into City
LAMAR, Mo., March 2.—(UP)—An airplane distributing handbills advertising the motion picture, "Devil Dogs of the Air," crashed among automobiles around the town square here late today, killing one passenger and injuring the pilot and another passenger critically.

The plane, flying at a low altitude, suddenly went out of control and dove 50 feet to the ground, it struck at a point at the northeast corner of the square. It barely missed cars parked there.

Maurice Bassett, 20, son of Sheriff James Bassett, was killed instantly.

Harold Thomas, 28, advertising manager of the Lamar Democrat, and United Press correspondent, and Ward Millard, the pilot, were taken to the hospital. Physicians said they believed both men were injured fatally.

FINAL DIVORCE DECREE

Two were:
1—Merriam's tax program is too much of a patchwork.
2—It is a temporary expedient.
3—It could not win the approval of the electorate.

TO STAGE FIGHT

The Governor said he would fight for every point in his program unless someone submitted a better plan. Certain staunch followers, particularly in the Senate, will follow his lead throughout the contest.

But there is a wide split between the Merriam forces, the Democrats headed by Senator Culbert L. Olson and Assemblyman William Moseley (former Upton Sinclair-Epic leaders) and the bourbon and G. O. P. "in-betweeners."

Particularly noticeable was the growing sentiment among Progressives for a far-reaching state tax or bond program to dispose of financial problems. They believed it would take some years to win enough support to establish a cross transactions or income tax to finance all governmental costs, but they predicted this type of revenue production was an inevitable future development, replacing the present patchwork system.

ELECTION NEAR

Some leaders forebaw a special election at which voters would be asked to choose between a short term bond issue of $100,000,000 or more—as a temporary solution—and a cross transactions or gross income tax which would replace nearly all present forms of taxation.

Test of Administration strength will be made early, if friends of the Governor can maneuver a high-water bill out of committee swiftly.

Hiring Hall In Longshoremen's Fight Will Open

SAN FRANCISCO, March 2.—(UP)—The long-awaited longshoremen's hiring hall, ordered established as one of the points of settlement in last summer's coastwide maritime strike, will be opened Monday at the waterfront.

The project will be jointly operated by shippers and stevedores. From it will be dispatched all longshoremen. They will know definitely whether they are going to work instead of waiting hours only frequently to learn there is no call.

Under the old system, men were recruited from street corners to the International Longshoremen's association hall.

SHOWMAN IS BROUGHT TO LIFE AGAIN

"It's Colossal!," "Stupendous!," "Gigantic!," "The Hollywood cries its wares, and the world credits Hollywood with originating the practice of applying sizzling superlatives to the commodities that one has to sell.

But Darryl F. Zanuck, in producing "The Mighty Barnum," now current at the Fox theatre, discovered that Hollywood is merely following in the footsteps of the world's greatest showman in this matter.

For it was in exhibiting such discoveries as Gen. Tom Thumb, the world's smallest man; the Cardiff Giant, George Washington's 160-year-old Negro nurse, the Fiji Mermaid, Jumbo, the Giant Behemoth and other freaks and oddities at his American Museum in New York City, that Barnum first pressed into service the adjectives which are now commonplace in Hollywood terminology. The picture itself keeps pace in its action and humor with the pace set by the use of Barnumesque adjectives, Adolphe Menjou and Virginia Bruce are members of the supporting cast.

Every day in the lives of the Dionne quintuplets is a special added feature on the current program. This reel offers a thousand thrills and smiles in its footage that shows the world famous babies from dawn until sunset. "A Pop, The Sailor" cartoon, Hal LeRoy comedy, and Fox News complete the short subjects.

Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD, March 2.—(UP)—Comes now that shrewd and outspoken young woman, Miss Sylvia Sidney, with a set of opinions regarding Hollywood that smack strongly of horse sense.

"I think Hollywood productions, by and large, lose in dramatic value by their elaborate mountings," Miss Sidney said.

"By the time a pack of set-dressers, scene-designers and painters have finished mounting a scene the actors and actresses are likely to be lost."

"I have seen pictures lately where it was all but impossible to keep one's attention centered on the star."

NOT GOOD THEATRE

This, Miss Sidney believes, may be colossal, but is theatrical nonsense.

"Some of the most successful dramatic productions have been those where the characterizations were developed with a minimum of interference," she said.

"Speaking from my own experience—as most of us must—there was 'Crime,' a thing I did when I was 14. Plus 'Street Scene,' in which I had one of my favorite roles, plus several others."

"There was 'Broadway,' so simply mounted that the audience had no chance to forget the drama that was taking place. And it ran for years."

Miss Sidney was very much impressed with Dan MacLo's "Crime Without Passion," a picture which has caused a great deal of favorable comment, in spite of and because of the fact that it was very simply and inexpensively produced.

Speed King

A CLOSE-UP of Sir Malcolm Campbell, British automobile speed king. This picture was taken at Daytona Beach, Fla., just before he started a test run in his new speed car, the Bluebird.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The drive to repeal the publicity provision of the income tax is getting no support from the Administration, although the President will sign a bill if it is passed. Privately, Treasury officials would like to see the "pink slip" requirement eliminated, but the White House has given orders that keep hands strictly off in the controversy. Senate Progressives—authors of the provision—have notified Administration floor leaders they will fight any attempt to legislate it off the law books.

Arkansas Senator Hattie Caraway, who hides a lively sense of humor behind her demure exterior, is reported by friends to be contemplating writing a book on her congressional experiences. If she doesn't pull her punches, the volume will make some of the best reading to emanate from Washington in a long time.

Dr. Calvin B. Hoover, new AAA Consumer's Counsel, is an overseas veteran with battle service in two major engagements. Friends think he will find this experience useful in the strife-filled offices of the AAA.

The record-breaking peace-time War Department appropriation bill passed by the House contains some odd items of expenditure. Among them are: $750 for carfare, $46,000 for "obtaining military information," $1,100 for West Point diplomas.

During the debate on the measure Kansas Republican Frank Carlson hurled this stunning rejoinder to foes of the bill: "The purpose of war is peace."

"There was 'Broadway,' so simply mounted that the audience had no chance to forget the drama that was taking place. And it ran for years."

Miss Sidney was very much impressed with Dan MacLo's "Crime Without Passion," a picture which has caused a great deal of favorable comment, in spite of and because of the fact that it was very simply and inexpensively produced.

Janet Gaynor Star Of Richmond Film

After 18 months of separation, Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell, the screen's most romantic team, will be reunited in Fox Film's latest release, "Change of Heart," which comes to the Richmond theatre on Sunday and Monday.

Heeding the requests of thousands of fans to re-team these two screen sweethearts, the studio started an intensive search for a story that would be suitable for their reunion. Kathleen Norris' great modern novel, "Manhattan Love Song" was finally selected out of hundreds of stories as the perfect vehicle.

GUM-CHEWERS

Senator George W. Norris, 73 years old, rarely uses the electric subway cars that shuttle between the Capitol and the Senate Office buildings, says he prefers to walk.

Champion gum-chewers of the Senate are Clark of Missouri and Donahay of Ohio. Clark's style is more muscular. Donahay's chew is more rapid. Sometimes Donahay chews upon a broken-in-two cigar.

During hearings of the Senate Munitions committee, Bethlehem Steel's President Eugene C. Grace, saw investigator Steve Raushenbush beside Senator Nye. He turned to a friend and said, "What's that other Senator?"

The government is in the fur business and wants the world to know it. In the main entrance of the Commerce building is a show case displaying three fur-tobed wren women, in latest Fifth avenue styles. The furs are products of the government-owned seal industry from the government-owned Pribilof Islands near Alaska.

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT
By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, March 2.—J. P. Morgan is offering for sale a piece of his property out Long Island way. It's worth some half million dollars, and apparently J. P. needs the dough—either that, or he's tired of paying taxes on investments that bring him no profit.

Coming hard on the news that he has sold a million and a half dollars worth of paintings, this new wrinkle in the story makes one wonder whether the wealthy are down to their last ten million, after all. At least many are beginning to show outward signs of going into shock.

With Otto Kahn no longer around to pay the bills, even the Metropolitan Opera's diamond horseshoe is beginning to find the going tough. Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Robert W. Goetz and the rest of the jeweled folk want to hold on to the 39th Street monument of their past glory, but more and more often they're calling for outside help.

It may yet be that the horseshoe will buckle into a corkscrew.

COMEDOWN—Once—and not so long ago—the great magnates delighted in showing the populace how much money they could spend. The original Morgan knew well how to throw lavish entertainments whose expense accounts ran up into the thousands for a single night's fun. Men like Diamond Jim Brady once lived up the ante-skyscraper era with their fabulous spending sprees. Henry Frick thought nothing of collecting art treasures that ran into the tens of millions and then giving them away without batting an eye.

Now the newspapers get excited over things like John D. Rockefeller's giving away shiny new dime to the deserving poor. It's a race of mice we're breeding.

GOLDEN GOOSE—So Marion Talley has signed up with the movies. You have to watch out for these shy cornflower lassies. Miss Talley has been stoutly protesting for the past couple of years that all she wanted to do was to stay on the farm and raise chickens. It looks as if what she was doing was to wait until the goose with the golden eggs waddled into the coop.

New Yorkers remember that night a few years ago when La Talley broke in on the town with a Metropolitan Opera debut. The chamber of commerce sent a delegation from their local Kansas town, and did the boys whoop it up for their Marion! They made so much fuss, as a matter of fact, that it was all over the front pages of the newspapers next morning, and for a while Marion cashed in heavily on the proceedings.

Lately things have been quiet, however, and Marion must have tired of sprinkling the feed around the barn. Maybe, too, she's been taking cues from Grace Moore, another lassie who hit the Manhattan scene via a noisy Metropolitan debut. Grace has been in the movies with no little success these past few months, and what's done once can be done again.

When Miss Talley finally warbles out from the flickers, it won't be with a rooster call.

INCONSIDERATE FIRE
STONEHAM, Mass.—(UP)—Faces of local firemen were as red as their shirts when Frank Peterson, a passerby, dropped in and announced that the stationhouse was in flames. The blaze was confined to the basement.

When Carol Morris' mother, a small-town dressmaker, suddenly dies, Carol sets out for New York to seek a career, though John Clark, who is in love with her, tries to dissuade her. In New York, she takes a job in Morgan's department store, where she is soon promoted into the office of Mr. Jackson, Paris buyer. Meanwhile, she has met the wealthy Ranny Sterling, who asks her to marry him, but Carol's one ambition is to have a career and achieve "success." One evening, while at the opera with Ranny, she runs into Mr. Jackson during an intermission. He chooses this moment to tell her that he wants her to go to Paris as his assistant on his next buying trip.

CHAPTER XVI

AT FIRST, Carol could not believe her ears but, with a quiet smile, Mr. Jackson assured her that he meant every word he was saying. Naturally, after that, the rest of the opera was very unimportant to the girl. She was too excited to give any attention at all to what was happening on the stage.

Ranny noticed her preoccupation and inquired as to its cause but she did not tell him. For a while, at least, she wanted to hug her precious secret to herself before imparting it to others. She was going to Paris! Oh, to be a Paris buyer meant to be somebody in the world of affairs!

Of course, she was only going as Mr. Jackson's assistant, and there was not much chance that she would have any opportunity to do purchasing on her own. But it was a great step forward toward the fulfillment of her ambition. In a little way, at least, she could smile and say she was successful.

Mr. Jackson evidently shared her idea about not making her forthcoming trip too public. So it was not until a week before she was to sail that word was given out at Morgan's. Mrs. Vaughan was most enthusiastic in her congratulations, and if Mrs. Brundage was a little more reserved, there was no doubt that she, too, was very much pleased over Carol's promotion.

CAROL did not break the news to Ranny until she had her steamer ticket in her possession. They were having dinner together, and she was as pleased as a child to be able to surprise him.

He patted her hand and smiled. "There, I knew you'd make it if you made up your mind. I'm awfully glad for your sake."

"Then you're not surprised?"

"No, I'm not surprised. I'm glad that your talents have been recognized, but that's a little bit different from surprise, isn't it?"

She sat back in her chair. "Ranny, I've just begun to wonder if I won't miss you very much when I'm in Paris."

He laughed softly. "Well, at least that helps me to come to a decision. I was thinking of going over, but now I won't."

"I don't think that's awfully kind of you to say that."

"Maybe not. But then, I don't think you've ever missed me before. That will be a sensation so new. I must make the most of it. Then, when you least expect it, I can dash over and meet you at the Cafe de la Paix some time and say, 'Surprise! Surprise! Here I am!'"

She shook her head. "Ranny, you ever serious?"

"I'm being very serious right now."

There was nothing left to say but that night, after she reached home, Carol kept thinking about Ranny Sterling. "Sterling in name, and sterling in character," Tracy Jennifer had said of him. And it applied. Carol wondered a little if he really would miss him in Paris. But on second thought, she decided probably not. He was connected in her mind with New York. In Paris she was going to be busy, ever so much busier than she had been, and there would be no time to think about anyone.

A FEW DAYS before sailing, she suddenly decided to write John. She had not intended writing him—she had not written him since their memorable scene at the office. But something impelled her to tell him of her new success. Above all, she couldn't resist writing him that the offer had come to her. The money elated Ranny, and all her friends came to see her off fairly laden with gifts for the traveler. And her stateroom was a veritable bower of roses.

Even the sea was kind to her on her first trip, and in every way the crossing was most pleasant. When she landed at Havre, she received a telegram from Mr. Jackson telling her he would meet her in Paris.

He did, late that evening, and escorted her to a small hotel where he had engaged a room for her. "I thought you'd like a quiet place," he said.

The next morning, Carol awoke feeling ready to sing for joy. At ten o'clock, she went to the suite at the Hotel Clifton, which Mr. Jackson had engaged as their headquarters.

The first day was taken up very largely with arrangements and preparations for the busy two weeks to follow. But the following day, Carol went with Mr. Jackson to a display of models at the famous house of Durand. Madame Durand was a stout, fat French woman of the bustling type, whose clothes fitted her plump figure so snugly that one feared that she might burst at any moment. But Madame Durand never burst as experienced buyers well knew.

Soon, Carol was eagerly watching the magnificent display of garments. Mr. Jackson had arranged for her to sit on the opposite side of the room so that they could form impressions separately and compare these later.

The show had proceeded about fifteen minutes when a tall, beautiful model swept out in a long, clinging evening gown of flame-colored silk. It was a most startling gown, and there was a little gasp of approval from the assembled buyers. But to her amazement, Carol saw that it was strikingly similar to a dress her mother had designed for her while she was at school. The gown before her was too flamboyant for use by Morgan's, but there was no doubt that her mother's simpler design could be used acceptably.

Using the hint of her program, Carol began to select a few of the dress her mother had made for her. But scarcely had she done so when a hand laid on her shoulder, and a voice fairly biased into her ear.

"Mademoiselle, will please leave at once. You know copying is not allowed. The show will not proceed until you are out of the building."

She looked up in amazement, but there was no doubting Madame Durand's sweeping gesture of dismissal. The models had stopped berating, and every eye seemed to be fastened on Carol. She looked helplessly toward Mr. Jackson, but he was too far away to speak, and only nodded in indication that she should accept the dismissal.

Forcing back tears, Carol fairly ran from the salon.

Justice Holmes Is Reported As Growing Weaker

WASHINGTON, March 2.—UP—Oliver Wendell Holmes, former justice of the Supreme Court, is losing slightly in his battle for life, physicians said tonight after a bedside consultation.

Suffering from pneumonia, the aged man was under an oxygen tent, a measure resorted to when pneumonia patients are desperately ill.

When supplies of oxygen were taken to the jurist's modest home during the day.

Dr. Thomas A. Clayton issued the following bulletin at 6:20 P. M. "After a consultation with Dr. Longcope and Dr. Becker, we find the justice a little weaker than he was yesterday and in view of his very advanced age, this is a disturbing condition."

TRANSPORT MEN STRIKE

DUBLIN, Sunday, March 3.—UP—Transportation services were paralyzed early today when members of two transport unions went on strike. The trouble involved all omnibuses and street car workers as well as railway men. It was occasioned by the dismissal of a bus driver.

DRESSMAKER'S DAUGHTER

By James Noble Gifford

When Carol Morris' mother, a small-town dressmaker, suddenly dies, Carol sets out for New York to seek a career, though John Clark, who is in love with her, tries to dissuade her. AT FIRST, Carol could not believe her ears but, with a quiet smile, Mr. Jackson assured her that he meant every word he was saying. Naturally, after that, the rest of the opera was very unimportant to the girl. She was too excited to give any attention at all to what was happening on the stage.

Ranny noticed her preoccupation and inquired as to its cause but she did not tell him. For a while, at least, she wanted to hug her precious secret to herself before imparting it to others. She was going to Paris! Oh, to be a Paris buyer meant to be somebody in the world of affairs!

Of course, she was only going as Mr. Jackson's assistant, and there was not much chance that she would have any opportunity to do purchasing on her own. But it was a great step forward toward the fulfillment of her ambition. In a little way, at least, she could smile and say she was successful.

Mr. Jackson evidently shared her idea about not making her forthcoming trip too public. So it was not until a week before she was to sail that word was given out at Morgan's. Mrs. Vaughan was most enthusiastic in her congratulations, and if Mrs. Brundage was a little more reserved, there was no doubt that she, too, was very much pleased over Carol's promotion.

CAROL did not break the news to Ranny until she had her steamer ticket in her possession. They were having dinner together, and she was as pleased as a child to be able to surprise him.

He patted her hand and smiled. "There, I knew you'd make it if you made up your mind. I'm awfully glad for your sake."

"Then you're not surprised?"

"No, I'm not surprised. I'm glad that your talents have been recognized, but that's a little bit different from surprise, isn't it?"

She sat back in her chair. "Ranny, I've just begun to wonder if I won't miss you very much when I'm in Paris."

He laughed softly. "Well, at least that helps me to come to a decision. I was thinking of going over, but now I won't."

"I don't think that's awfully kind of you to say that."

"Maybe not. But then, I don't think you've ever missed me before. That will be a sensation so new. I must make the most of it. Then, when you least expect it, I can dash over and meet you at the Cafe de la Paix some time and say, 'Surprise! Surprise! Here I am!'"

She shook her head. "Ranny, you ever serious?"

"I'm being very serious right now."

There was nothing left to say but that night, after she reached home, Carol kept thinking about Ranny Sterling. "Sterling in name, and sterling in character," Tracy Jennifer had said of him. And it applied. Carol wondered a little if he really would miss him in Paris. But on second thought, she decided probably not. He was connected in her mind with New York. In Paris she was going to be busy, ever so much busier than she had been, and there would be no time to think about anyone.

A FEW DAYS before sailing, she suddenly decided to write John. She had not intended writing him—she had not written him since their memorable scene at the office. But something impelled her to tell him of her new success. Above all, she couldn't resist writing him that the offer had come to her. The money elated Ranny, and all her friends came to see her off fairly laden with gifts for the traveler. And her stateroom was a veritable bower of roses.

Even the sea was kind to her on her first trip, and in every way the crossing was most pleasant. When she landed at Havre, she received a telegram from Mr. Jackson telling her he would meet her in Paris.

He did, late that evening, and escorted her to a small hotel where he had engaged a room for her. "I thought you'd like a quiet place," he said.

The next morning, Carol awoke feeling ready to sing for joy. At ten o'clock, she went to the suite at the Hotel Clifton, which Mr. Jackson had engaged as their headquarters.

The first day was taken up very largely with arrangements and preparations for the busy two weeks to follow. But the following day, Carol went with Mr. Jackson to a display of models at the famous house of Durand. Madame Durand was a stout, fat French woman of the bustling type, whose clothes fitted her plump figure so snugly that one feared that she might burst at any moment. But Madame Durand never burst as experienced buyers well knew.

Soon, Carol was eagerly watching the magnificent display of garments. Mr. Jackson had arranged for her to sit on the opposite side of the room so that they could form impressions separately and compare these later.

The show had proceeded about fifteen minutes when a tall, beautiful model swept out in a long, clinging evening gown of flame-colored silk. It was a most startling gown, and there was a little gasp of approval from the assembled buyers. But to her amazement, Carol saw that it was strikingly similar to a dress her mother had designed for her while she was at school. The gown before her was too flamboyant for use by Morgan's, but there was no doubt that her mother's simpler design could be used acceptably.

Using the hint of her program, Carol began to select a few of the dress her mother had made for her. But scarcely had she done so when a hand laid on her shoulder, and a voice fairly biased into her ear.

"Mademoiselle, will please leave at once. You know copying is not allowed. The show will not proceed until you are out of the building."

She looked up in amazement, but there was no doubting Madame Durand's sweeping gesture of dismissal. The models had stopped berating, and every eye seemed to be fastened on Carol. She looked helplessly toward Mr. Jackson, but he was too far away to speak, and only nodded in indication that she should accept the dismissal.

Forcing back tears, Carol fairly ran from the salon.

The jury had deliberated the case nearly 24 hours and twice this morning sent messages to Judge Neterer informing him that they were "hopelessly blocked" on an evenly divided ballot. The judge dismissed the jurors shortly after noon.

Lesson Subject At Science Church

"As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him: For in him dwelleth all the fullness of the Godhead bodily." These words from Colossians comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, March 3, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Christ Jesus." Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "Then cried Jesus in the temple as he taught, saying, Ye know me, and ye know whence I am; and I am not come to myself, but he that sent me is true, whom ye know not. But I know him; for I am from him, and he hath sent me" (John 7:28, 29).

The following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "Jesus presented the ideal of God better than could any man whose origin was less spiritual. By his obedience to God, he demonstrated more spiritually than all others the Principle of being. . . . We must go and do likewise, else we are not improving the great blessings which our Master worked and suffered to bestow upon us" (p. 25).

Ore Tax Fight Leads To Secession Move

RAPID CITY, S. D., March 2.—(UP)—A new State to be carved out of rich mining and industrial sections of South Dakota, Montana, and Wyoming was sought in petitions being circulated tonight in the 40,000 square mile area involved.

Bitterness over the prolonged ore tax fight in South Dakota and repeated declarations by farm leaders that the Black Hills is not contributing its share toward State expenses precipitated the secession movement.

Population of the new State, for which no name has been suggested, would be approximately 97,000 persons.

State Refuses To Cut SERA Checks; Will Borrow Cash

LOS ANGELES, March 2.—UP.—The California unemployment relief commission was given federal approval late today of its refusal to slash SERA payment to 272,473 families, provided the commission borrows enough money to cover a drastic cut in federal funds during March.

Aubrey Williams, assistant federal relief administrator, telephoned from Washington, D. C., giving government approval of the commission's action in rescinding slashes of approximately 30 percent in relief payments ordered throughout the State.

He told the commissioners, however, that they were bound to borrow money either from the State or private banks to bridge over the March relief crisis caused by a 40 percent reduction in the government appropriation to California.

To maintain present $34 a month payment per family, it was said the commission must borrow approximately $4,500,000 to bridge over March until the $24,000,000 bond issue is sold in April.

Heiress Is Object Of Extortion Plot

PHILADELPHIA, March 2.—UP.—Possibility of a plot to kidnap Ethel Dupont, wealthy munitions heiress of Wilmington, Del., was investigated by police tonight.

Authorities started the investigation after the arrest of Joseph J. Di Giovanni, 23, on charges of impersonating an officer. In his pocket was found a newspaper picture of Miss Dupont. Di Giovanni told a police magistrate he was carrying it around "just for curiosity."

The suspect is said by police to be connected with a blackmail gang which has extorted thousands of dollars from business men here.

United Artists May Leave To Avoid Tax Bill

NEW YORK, March 2.—UP.—Joseph Schenck, president of United Artists, will leave for Miami, Florida tomorrow, to seek a possible site for motion picture studios, he told the United Press tonight.

His visit, Schenck said, was prompted by the impending California bill placing a State income tax of 35 percent or more upon industries operating in that State. "I am making the trip as head of United Artists and at the request of Louis B. Mayer, of Metro Goldwyn Mayer," Schenck said. "I am going to make a survey of possible locations, because if the income tax bill becomes law, we will have to leave the State."

SAN FRANCISCO, March 2.—UP.—Police Inspector Nicholas Barron, 58, in his youth a track star in England, died of a heart attack in a police car today.
